Healthcare Management (promoted by the SIG-HCM)

Description of the Panel

The IRSPM SIG-HCM focuses on the cross-fertilization of ideas between the fields of Healthcare Management and Public Management.

We invite submissions with two broad perspectives: (a) the MICRO perspective will group work that focuses at the organizational level. These grouping will include papers focused on intra-organizational issues, resources, and processes, including professionals; (b) the MACRO perspective will group work at interorganizational and/or systems level of analysis.

The panel aims at fostering and discussing rigorous research on the following (though not exclusive) topics:

- Patient-centered organizations
- Integrated care (including clinical pathways)
- Value-based Healthcare
- Performance Measurement/Management
- Initiatives targeting Frailty, Chronicity, Multimorbidity
- Primary care models/innovation and Prevention
- Health systems reform, including governance

The panel welcomes quantitative and qualitative analysis with a strong linkage to the literature and the most recent academic debate. Papers can be on national contexts, but comparative studies are particularly welcomed as are papers on administration and governance issues in global health.

Submissions are expected to highlight how they are going to contribute to public and healthcare management research. Preference will be given to papers that consider the Conference themes of Stewardship, Innovation and Impact.

One of the goals of the SIG-HCM is to provide developmental feedback so that the papers presented on our panels can be further refined for publication in the field's top public management journals. We encourage the work of doctoral and junior scholars for submission.

The panel sessions will be structured with discussants and the debate is expected to provide presenters with the opportunity to collect feedback on their research.

The best (submitted) papers will be eligible for fast track in the international journal Health Services Management Research.
